

747-400ERF Cargolux Retro (534864)

Unfortunately, the fuselage with the long upper deck was used for the Cargolux Retro Colors Boeing 747-400ERF model (534864), instead of the freighter version with the shorter upper deck.

During the final check at Herpa our colleagues make sure that the finish of the models is clean and that nothing has been damaged during transport. The focus therefore is less on again checking if the correct model variant was used, especially as the artwork layouts and pre-production parts had correctly depicted the short upper deck and were approved of accordingly.

We deeply regret the mistake and will naturally revise this model should we start a new production run.

In that case, we will inform our customers and retailers through our newsletter and other publications, as well as through our various social media channels accordingly.
